CURRENT CAPITOL GOSSIP.

OPINIONS AND EXPRESSIONS GATHERED

morrow. There will doubtless be a republican caucus to consider them. I will oppose Mr. Bayard for secretary of state on the ground that he is un-American. There is no prospect, however, that there will be any caucus action against Bayard. I only speak for myself, and simply propose to emphasize convictions which I have expressed in the senate. Mr. Bayard's resolution of sympathy for England on the occasion of the London explosions convinces me that he is not the man to be at the head of the diplomatic service of this government. This is why I oppose him. He is not the man for that place."

ONE MAN'S ENTHUSIASM.

ONE MAN'S ENTHUSIASM. While the Fitzhugh Lee part of the procession was passing the Metropolitan Hotel yesterday there was loud cheering, and Gen. Lee doffed his hat and howed and Gen. Lee doffed his hat and howed to everybody. When the yells of the populace had died away an Irish son of a tell waved his hat, and cried out in stentorian tones, "Three cheers for James G. Blaine!" There was no response whatever, but the Irish son of a tell waved his hat and gave the "hip hip hurrahs" with as much enthusiasm as if dit were being echoed by a thousand throats. Though there was no echo to the sentiment the band had quit playing about that time, a quiet had intervened, and this sudden and unexpected one-man pathusiasm for a few moments cast a damper on surrounding space.

FINNERTY ON THE PROCESSION.

FINNERTY ON THE PROCESSION.

Representative Finnerty said last night: "Being an old journalist I rarely appreciate processions as they have grown immonotonous to me. Generally it is a chittle blue, a little grey, a profusion of abanners and flags and there is your procession. But the display of to-day pafforded a view which I shall never forget. I stood on the west portice of the capitol as the escorting divisions amoved eastward with the President celect this morning and looking up Penneylvania avenue the spectacle presented pwas one of the most magnificent I ever wheheld. The regular troops, the stillery, the marine corps, the splendid Penneylvania regiments, with the glittering bayonets, the blue uniforms, and the harmonious admixture of red and gray, stretching from the peace monument to the treasury building, moving through the vast multitudes of citizens that packed the sidewalks like the gulf stream through the ocean, all with a harmony and a military precision never excelled, was a picture worthy of the greatest artist that ever lived. Added to this were the magnificent dome. FINNERTY ON THE PROCESSION. excelled, was a picture worthy of the greatest artist that ever lived. Added to this were the magnificene dome of the capitol, towering above like a lone senticel; the panorams of a great and beautiful city, with its varied architecture and picturesque avenues, sloping gracefully to the banks of the Potomac; and the grand hills of old Virginia, bare of trees, looming up in the distance, and the bright sun lending a glow of gold to all. I was so enthused by this magnificent view that I forgot all about congress, and I would have missed the closing seems had not a friend rushed out and scenes had not a friend rushed out and scenes had not a friend rushed out and informed me that it is Grant bill was up. I got in just in time to vote for that bill, and I was very glad of it. It was my last vote in congress, and, as I was not re-elected, it may be a long time before I have another opportunity to vote for such a conditional results. such a good measure.

CLEVELAND A WHOLE TEAM. Said a southern democrat yesterday: "Cleveland is a whole team himself, with a yellow dog and tar bucket under the hind axle thrown in. His letter to the silver men was a sledge hammer blow right on top of the head, and the cabinet lion is mad at Cleveland, and Tonnessee, Louisiana, and Georgia feel as if they have been ignored. The most extraordinary pressure brought to bear on Cleveland for any aspirant was in favor of Jonas After listening to everybody Cleveland quietly wiped Jonas's name from the slate and substituted that of a man in whose behalf there was by no means a general appeal. In short, Clevelland has already shown that he will make a stubborn and headstrong president, with only a limited amount of respect for the advice of party leaders. If there is not a pretty wide breach in the party pretty soon, then democrats generally will be agreeably disappointed."

A WALL STREET KING. right on top of the head, and the cabinet has been arranged without regard to anysody's advice. The whole Texas delegation is mad at Cleveland, and Tennessee, Louislana, and Georgia feel as if they have been ignored. The most extraordinary pressure brought to bear on Cleveland for any aspirant was in favor of Jonas. After listening to everybody Cleveland quietly wiped Jonas's name from the slate and substituted that of a man in whose behalf there was by no means a general appeal. In short, Cleveland has already shown that he will make a stubborn and headstrong president,

A WALL STREET KING.

"Do you see that middle-aged gentleman with a derby?" said a visitor at the capitol yesterday, pointing to a rather distinguished looking man who was pushing his way through the crowd. "Well, that is Addison Cammack. He is one of the kings of Wall street. There is no man in this country, not even including Gould, who knows so much about stocks and bonds as he does. His monthly man in this country, not even including Gould, who knows so much about stocks and bonds as he does. His monthly transactions go away up into the millions. Most of the Wail streeters are Cleveland men, but Cammack is one of your old-fashioned, hard-shell, before-the-war kind of democrats, who has been praying and paying for his party over since James Buchanan left the white house. He has given liberally to every democratic campaign fund since the war. Every four years he has thrown his hat in the air and yelled, 'We've got 'em,' never giving up until the remotest precinct had been heard from. During the last campaign he gave as liberally as anybody in New York, except, possibly, Wm. C. Whitney, Now he is here to see the inauguration, and he wouldn't miss it for $10,000. I heard him say to-day that this 4th of March would be the happiest of his life." PRE-EMPTING A POSTOFFICE.

March would be the happiest of his life."

PRE-EMPTING A POSTOFFICE.

A tail man, with a lankness out of all proportion to his real height and lack of liesh, evidently looking for some one, was prowling about the reception room of the senate yesterday. He seemed to have found the man he was seeking when the fine open countenance of a REFUELL-tan reporter beamed upon him.

"Mister," he said, and paused right in the pathway to fume that the other was treading, "I want to see Senator Vest, but he's asleep and I can't got to him. I'm from Missoury, I am, and I'm after the postoffice at Kansss City, and I'm going to get it, and don't you forget it! Why, look here," and he drew a roll of paper from his northwest overcoat pocket. "Here's a petition signed by 1,200 of the best people of the city, the best people, who say they'll go on my bond for $100,000. Stranger, I'm going to get that postoffice, and Senator Vest is going to support me, too."

Whether the last remark was a state-Support me, too."
Whether the last remark was a statement of fact, or in the nature of an in-timation that the south western friend of the poer Indian wenid be unable to re-sist the voluminous documents and the state militia did not appear. The gaunt office pre-emptor seemed relieved at having imparted his stock of personal information, but did not apparently let up to any appreciable extent of the search for Senator Vest.

BRADY'S REMINISCENSES. "Brady," the famous photographer of former years, was among the throng that crowded along the avenue yesterday. Perhaps no man in the country has seen more of the public men of America than more of the public men of America than he has. There was a time when it was zero to find a party leader when it was zero to find a party leader who could say he had not been photographed by Brady. "The old party leaders are ovidently gone for good," said the veteran yesterday. "There are hardly a baker's dozon of the prominent men who were at the Buchanan inauguration who are here now. All the faces I see are new."

Among the famous men who had pictures taken by Brady were Washington Irving.

J. Fenimore Coaper, Edgar Alien Pos.
Calsons, Clay, Webster, the Prince of Wales, and Duke Alexis. His list also includes almost every man who ever figured conspicuously in modern Ameri-can history.

AN ENTHUSIASTIC DEMOCRAT.

OPINIONS AND ENTRESSIONS GATHERED IN BRIEF TALES WITH STATESMEN.

Senator Riddleberger Will Not Vote for Bayard—A Wall Street King Among the Congressmen—A Southern Democrat's Estimate of Cieveland's Obstinacy.

Senator Riddleberger said last night: "I learned about an hour ago that the cabinet nominations would be sent in tomorrow. There will doubtless be a republican caucus to consider them. I will oppose Mr. Bayard for scoretary of state on the ground that he is un-American. There is no prospect, however, that there will be any caucus action against Bayard. INAUGURAL INJURIES.

The Record of the Emergency Hospital for the Day.

Harry Roderfer, belonging to company E, 7th Virginia regiment, was found lying in an unconscious condition yesterday morning in the court yard of the patent office, where it is supposed that he had fallen some time during the night. He office, where it is supposed that he had fallen some time during the night. He was brought to the Emergency Hospital, when an examination revealed the fact that he had received a serious blow on the head by the fall, producing a concussion of the brain.

Among other injuiries dressed at this hospital were the following:

Benjamin R. Maning, a white man, was run over by a hordic cab near Fouranda-half street and Pennsylvania avenue. He was picked up and brought to the Emergency Hospital, when his head was found to be badly cut.

Andrew Newton, a stranger, was found sick upon the street by the police, and taken to the fifth precinct. Physicians of the Emergency Hospital attended him.

L. L. Cox, of Miles Springs, N. C., while watching the exhibition drill of the Flambeau Club at the corner of Tenth street and Pennsylvania avenue, last night, was accidentally struck on the head by a descending sky rocket, and received a severe scalp wound. Dr. Taylor, of the Emergency Hospital, attended him.

John Clabaugh, of Baltimore, was soized with vertigo at the corner of Tenth street and Pennsylvania avenue during the procession. He was brought to the Emergency Hospital, where Dr. Wright relieved him.

A young man named F. C. Latrobe,

Emergency Hospital, where Dr. Wright relieved him.

A young man named F. C. Latrobe, jr., hailing from Baltimore, was hit in the eye by some unknown party last night. He was brought to the fifth precinct station, where attention was given him by Dr. Roy.

George Conrad, while watching the exhibition of the Flambeau Guards, picked up a rocket dropped by them, and while holding it some unknown person set it on fire, causing him to be burned severely an the hand by the explosion. Dr. Taylor, of the Emergency Hospital, dressed the wound.

Daniel Webster's Head. Webster used to drive in his gig from Boston, and sometimes from Higham, over Boston, and sometimes from Higham, over the road to Marshfield. On such occasions troops of children would come flocking out and follow after him, so great a fascination did he have for them. And I have seen somewhere how a little child, on entering the room where Webster was seated, and, looking up into his great soft eyes, ran instinctively into his arms, as if yearning to get as near as possible to his great tender heart. As an infant he is described as a crying baby who worried his parents considerably. He grew up to bowhood pale, weak, and sickly; as he himself often told me, he was the slimmest in the family. And yet, by doing a boy's work on his father's farm, by indulging a propensity for outdoor sports, by leading a temperate and frugal life, he succeeded in building up a robust constitution. It was an iron frame, large and stately, with a great mountain of a head upon it.

TWO MYTHS TWO FACTS.

Two dames "welcome the coming, speed the departing guest." Dame Columbia, with equal grace, dismisses one National Chief from the White House and welcomes another. Dame Nature, with ill-concealed disgust, sends off tattered old Winter, and, with eager gladness, welcomes fair coming

These changes bring cares to the President and to us. We expect to suit every man and boy who comes to us. Can the President hope to do as much.
